CLAIMS WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC THRIVES HERE

McDuffie Makes Arrests and Secures Confessions Which May Lead to Expose
 Giggling at first as they gave their names in to be written on the police blotter, and afterward weeping bitterly as they were taken down to be locked up, Martha Lokana, Emma Myers, Anna Parker, and Cecilia Keoras were charged this morning with commercialized vice, and held for trial and investigation at the police station. At the same time Jack J. Maral and L. Gonzalla were charged with procuring, and sent to a cell.
 For months the police and McDuffie's detectives have been trying to get direct evidence against the white slave traffic which they have long suspected was being carried on in Honolulu. Last night a Chinaman, who has so far refused to give his name, was robbed of a watch by Anna Parker, alias Jones and after the arrest she gave out the information which later led to the arrests of the other five.
 The Parker woman, in her confession to the police, charges that L. Gonzalla had for a long time lived with her and forced her to support him by public commercialized vice, but when the income was not sufficient she was forced to go out and steal to fill his pocketbook.
 The practice of the girls, according to today's revelations, has been to walk along the streets and loiter in some place where they have an opportunity to make approaches to any man who passes. The couple then wait for a hack or a machine to pass, hail it, and are taken to the rooming house where the girl lives. Once in the house the man is lured for as large a sum as possible and the keepers of the rooming house wink at the business, probably because they are let into a little of the profits.
 All of the keepers of rooming houses where this practice is carried on will be arrested as soon as the girls give out their names.
 These are the facts which the girls have so far disclosed this morning under a casual questioning. Chief of Detectives McDuffie states that he expects a mass of first-hand evidence which will astonish the city and a number of clues which when run down will lay open an astonishingly elaborate system of white slave traffic which has been established in Honolulu.

The attorneys for the plaintiff continued today to read the deposition of Cass Gilbert, the New York architect. Gilbert designed the Spalding building in Portland, Oregon, the construction of which has resulted in the present litigation. Plaintiffs alleged that Colonel Spalding is in debt to them to the extent of more than $55,000.

HAVE TO CLOSE AROUND-ISLAND ROAD FOR TIME

Mayor Lane, who took the trip around the island yesterday with the members of the road committee, is especially enthusiastic concerning that portion of the around-the-island road known as the Pupukea strip. This portion runs for a distance of some four and three-quarter miles. "It is a great piece of road," says the mayor, "and one surely finds it a pleasure to ride over the completed parts. A few weeks more will see it finished, and then we can certainly boast a splendid start on the around-the-island road."
 Two gangs are at work on the road, one gang at Kahuku working under the supervision of Andrew Adams and the other gang at Waihua end, under Oscar Cox. This is the work that was taken over by the city, after rejecting other bids which were considered far too high. An appropriation of $20,000 was made for carrying on the construction.
 Engineer Whitehouse says that the strip of road to which the mayor refers will be finished by the end of the month, and that the outfit used there will be removed immediately after that to Kahana, that work may be kept up continuously.
 The engineer says that it will be necessary, beginning in about a month, to close the road entirely for periods of two and three weeks and shut off traffic of all sorts in some parts from time to time. This will prevent an entire around-the-island trip, he says, but he hopes that the good effects produced by the work will be enough to far outweigh the temporary disadvantage of having the road closed.

OLD FOLKS NEED 'CASGARETS' FOR LIVER, BOWELS

 Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.
 So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.
 Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.—Adv.
